Illustrator has been available for about 20 years.

It's been redesigned in many ways, and has numerous additional features and enhancements, but the basics are still fairly simple to understand. Illustrator's most common use is to create vector graphics for logos, ads, and related artwork. This is a very common tool for beginners. Illustrator uses a different editing system than Photoshop. Instead of using raster images, it uses vector graphics. The feature set is similar to that of Photoshop, but it is more powerful and easy to use for beginners.

You can apply a color on a layer or you can fill a layer. First, select a color and move the Gradient tool on the canvas. Then, click once on the first point to move to the left. Now move to the second point by clicking once. Repeat the process for the other colors. Now, go to Edit > Fill and select the colors you want to apply. Finally, select the Layers panel to apply the colors on the layer. Create a new layer This is a very common exercise and you can use it all the time. With the Gradient tool, move to the first point and click once on the second point. Now, change the direction of the Gradient tool by pressing S or ⬆ (↶) and now move to the second point. You can repeat the exercise for the other colors. Duplicate the layer This is a simple exercise. You just have to duplicate the layer. With the Layers panel, select the yellow layer and click once on the Add Layer button. Then, go to Edit > Copy and select the bottom layer. Now, edit the colors of the bottom layer and you have two layers with the same colors and the same position. 388ed7b0c7

The East Enders, a sequel to the BBC1 sitcom, is one of the most anticipated shows of the New Year. The sequel will see the characters continue to live and work in “a new setting”, although it is not believed to be one of the regular filming locations. The first series of the sitcom was axed by the BBC in May 2012, after its star Billie Piper left. It is also expected that the new EastEnders will not be made by Red Productions, the company that owns the rights to the original series. Piper's character Gemma Arterton quit the soap in January last year to star in Tom Edge's mockumentary Marvellous. Fans will be thrilled at the prospect of seeing her return, but it is uncertain whether she will appear. The first series of EastEnders was filmed in Southend, in Essex, and also in Attleborough, in Lincolnshire. “It has always been our intention to make EastEnders happen again,” a spokeswoman for Amicus Productions, which oversees the programme, told The Sun. “We know our show holds a special place in the hearts of millions of families around the world and we always want to create the best possible show for them. “One of the things we’ve learned from our previous success with EastEnders is that the fans have a very strong attachment to the characters that they grow to love. They’re the reason EastEnders became a world-renowned show, so it’s important that, as far as possible, we do everything in our power to create another hit with them.” The news comes as a shock to fans of the original show. However, the cast have been keeping their cards close to their chest and the producers have said they will not reveal the secret location for filming until the show returns. She added: “The first series was a really lovely show and we miss those characters very much. “They were the reason we started doing the show in the first place and, although they’re no longer here, I know the fans will agree that it’s one of the best shows ever and that they’re the reason we’re still making them today.” The original EastEnders premiered in January 1985 and focused on the Arterton family, Finally, the guy who promised that there would be ‘balance’ on immigration heard a plea from a country with one of the highest rates of immigration in the world, and one that has seen its welfare-state institutions disappear. That country is Ireland. As Senators on either side of the border, we’d like to echo the call for a ‘humane and compassionate’ approach to migration in Europe and elsewhere. We call for a commitment to employment-led integration, an emphasis on skills and language-based mobility, in line with the Irish Republic’s own history and model. Furthermore, we call for the right and possibility for all EU citizens of legal residence to travel to any other EU state for a period of twelve months, as they are entitled to do under the Treaty of the European Union. And where their contribution to the Irish taxpayer is of value, they should be given citizenship. In contrast, recent comments from the Brexit Secretary, David Davis, show the intention to trade on a lie. He was asked by Sky News: “Let’s be clear, is it your intention to leave the single market without having negotiated free access to it? Or will that not be an intention of the UK government in leaving the EU?” He answered with “I don’t think we will do that". This is an inaccurate and dangerous statement. For two reasons. Firstly, in making such a statement, he may be committing a crime by misrepresenting the obligations under Article 50 of the Treaty on European Union. This is a separate matter. But secondly, and perhaps more importantly, this is a clear act of lying to the Irish people. This is not the first time this has happened. Just last month, Mr. Davis was asked if there would be "economic checks" at the Irish border if the UK was no longer a member of the European Union, to which he answered in the affirmative. Again, this amounts to a lie. And this is a similar level of lie to the one he has been getting away with - that he is seeking 'negotiations' with the Irish Government, however as recently as last month he has made it plain that he wants to end negotiations over the Irish border. This raises the question of why he has been misleading the British people. This is a question that has been asked a number of times and David Davis has offered the same non-answer. There is no '
